

The Resource Collection for Learning Differences of the San Francisco Public Library presents

Developing Minds

Video Series

The Developing Minds video series is a success-oriented approach to understanding and demystifying students' learning profiles that focuses on strengthening strengths and developing strategies that work for children, adolescents, parents and teachers.

Mastering the Challenge of Reading

This video explores the process of learning to read and common problems that many children face. Children and early adolescents in classroom and home situations are shown struggling with one or more subskills: decoding, comprehension and reading retention. Parents and teachers will learn practical strategies and skills to help children become better readers.

Upcoming 2006–2007 series:

March 21 Getting Thoughts on Paper
April 25 Thinking with Numbers

All programs at the Library are free.

Cosponsored by the San Francisco Unified School District, Schwab Learning (a service of the Charles & Helen Schwab Foundation), Community Advisory Committee for Special Education, the San Francisco PTA, the San Francisco School Volunteers, Support for Families of Children with Disabilities and Friends of the San Francisco Public Library
